A pet loss memoir with a culinary connection

13 soulful essays. 13 delicious recipes.

Exploring the life lessons learned from the loss of a first beloved dog and the puppy who followed her, each essay closes with a unique recipe that brings the story to life. The recipes, some for people, some for dogs, some for people and dogs add a wonderful, charming twist that makes this book unique. The book is a sweet, moving tribute, a love letter, and a testimony to our deep and abiding capacity for love.

Bringing comfort to anyone who has lost a pet or human loved one, it fully acknowledges the process of grieving and encourages them to begin again when the time is right.

More than a tribute to a beloved golden retriever, Weaver's chronicle is a study of relationships: the author's with her husband, with her animals, with her neighbors, and with herself.

As an educator, I find in Weaver's story the reminder for children and adults alike that to invite love into one's life is often to invite pain as well. But the journey makes it all worth it, and worth talking about.

Jennifer Moore, Principal, Coronado High School

As a veterinarian I have experienced countless times the grief of losing a beloved pet. Weaver's memoir puts this grief into real, tangible language that will be understood and appreciated by all who have gone through such a devastating loss. The recipes add a unique twist, and to see the circle completed at the end of the book gives hope to anyone who reads it. A valuable resource for anyone who has lost a beloved animal companion.

Suzi Fincham-Gray, DVM

I read Golden Angels with my six-year-old daughter shortly after my husband's mother passed away. It gave her the opportunity ask questions about how it made her feel. There are so many different emotions that we all experience with loss, breaking them down can be an undertaking. Golden Angels is the perfect book for families preparing and dealing with the loss of any family member.
